

Additional Information

Your statement has been prepared based on data in Company records as of July 1, 2013. Every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy of the information reported. However, errors can occur. In all cases, actual benefits will be paid in accordance with the governing plan documents or insurance contracts.

Pension Plan benefits shown are estimates only, based on the assumption that your base pay as of July 1, 2013 and current Social Security law remain unchanged until you retire. If you are within five years of a retirement age shown, your past earnings have been taken into account in estimating your benefit at that age. Affiliate service is considered for plan participation, vesting, early retirement eligibility and early retirement subsidy. Affiliate service and compensation is considered for pension plan benefit accrual, only if affiliate participates in the MBUSA pension plan.

Part-time service may not count towards eligibility for vesting. These estimates do not include any overtime that you may have earned as a non-exempt employee. However, overtime pay will be considered in the actual final pension benefit calculation you will receive upon retirement or termination of employment.

Social Security benefits shown are estimates only, based on reasonable assumptions about your past earnings and on prospective amounts payable under current law. It is assumed that you have worked in Social Security-covered employment all of your adult life and that you qualify for all Social Security benefits.

Actual benefits at retirement, death or disability will be based on your covered earnings as recorded with the Social Security Administration and on the benefit formula and other provisions of the law in effect when benefits become payable.

For an actual estimate of your Social Security payment, call the Social Security Administration's toll-free number (1-800-772-1213) or visit their website (www.socialsecurity.gov).

Employee Retirement Savings Plan (401(k)) – Generally, if you make a withdrawal or receive a distribution from the Employee Retirement Savings Plan before age 59-1/2, federal law requires that you pay a special 10% tax in addition to income taxes that would normally be due. You do not have to pay this special tax if the withdrawal or distribution is because of early retirement at age 55 or later. In addition, IRS withholding rules apply to withdrawals and lump-sum payments made after January 1, 1993.

If you were to save an additional 1% through the Employee Retirement Savings Plan, your account could look like this:

Estimated account balance:	If annual investment growth averages			Estimated account balance:	If annual investment growth averages
	0%	4%	8%		0%	4%	8%
at age 65	$484,800	$993,000	$2,179,900	at age 65	$509,600	$1,036,200	$2,259,400

The amounts shown are illustrative only and are not intended to be relied upon as a guarantee of future results. Keep in mind that these estimates may fluctuate from year to year based on your actual earnings, contributions and investment performance.

Your Total Retirement Income

Your income at retirement will come from the benefits provided by the Pension Plan, the Employee Retirement Savings Plan (401(k)), Social Security and vested amounts in other employers' retirement plans, as well as any other personal assets you may have.

The following chart and graph show your total projected monthly retirement income as a life annuity from the Pension Plan, Employee Retirement Savings Plan (401(k)) and Social Security. All the amounts are stated in "today's dollars." That means we have ignored future salary increases and inflation. We assumed that your current base pay remains unchanged until you retire and that your Employee Retirement Savings Plan (401(k)) investments grow at 4% annually.

A good way to analyze how much income you will need to retire is to relate it to your salary just prior to retirement. Many financial experts recommend 60% - 80% of final pay as a comfortable retirement income target. If your MBUSA and Social Security benefits are less than 60% of your final pay, you may want to increase the amount that you are saving. If MBUSA and Social Security are expected to provide more than 80% of your final pay, you may want to use this information as part of your financial planning to reach the retirement target that is right for you. The Company's plans are designed to replace a significant portion of final pay for those who spend the majority of their career with the Company.
